As President Trump's day advances to the time when he would ordinarily be on the back nine, your pooler has heard no reply from the White House to questions about who he's playing golf with today.

But Press Secretary Stephanie Grisham advises that someone from FEMA is traveling with the president, and "he's being briefed every hour."

Your pooler asked Grisham to respond to continuing questions about why the president scrapped his trip to Poland. She said there is a built-in advantage to staying in the United States during a period of extreme meteorological uncertainty.

"Obviously, being here domestically is better," she told your pooler. "We're more nimble and all his agencies are here."

After he arrived at his Sterling, Virginia golf course this morning, the president retweeted a National Hurricane Center storm-tracking advisory that went out at 11:09 a.m.

His schedule calls for a Hurricane Dorian briefing at Camp David at 4:00 p.m.
